

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FUND

In 2004, AAJA launched a two-year $2 million endowment campaign designed to provide a foundation to sustain programs critical to our mission: national scholarships, the multicultural J Camp journalism training for high school students, the groundbreaking Executive Leadership Program, and others. In December 2006, the AAJA Governing Board voted to extend the endowment campaign beyond its initial two-year goal. AAJA appreciates the more than 300 individuals, community and media organizations, businesses, corporations and foundations that have already given so generously. Help AAJA continue its professional and student programs as well as membership services, even as funding becomes a continuing challenge for many non-profit organizations like ours. Fulfill your pledge or make new/additional contributions.

AAJA has raised more than $1.1 million from members, media and the community. Pledge your support to the AAJA Endowment Fund and help ensure AAJA will be able to continue offering needed programs to meet the organization's goals of fair and accurate coverage of the Asian American and Pacific Islander communities and greater representation in America's newsrooms.
